When registering or transferring domains, a registrar (or provider for the registrar) will require a Customer to verify his or her contact information. The process will require a Customer to have a valid e-mail account to which a request for verification will be sent. The Customer is required to confirm his or her identity by taking the appropriate action detailed in the email. If the Customer does not take the appropriate action, the registrar is obligated to terminate the domain in 15 days. Provider is not liable for any damages resulting in the termination of the domain. Provider is also not liable for delivery of the e-mail message.

A 7.

A 8.

The service provider reserves the right to publish any kind of content under the registered domain during the period between the domain registration and the publication of content provided by the customer.

A 10.

The Customer agrees and consents to (when it is explicitly required to fulfill customer's order) modification of customer's data that is supplied to the registrar of certain TLDs (top level domains). This includes (but is not limited to) TLDs that require the customer to be locally present in the country of the TLD registry.

C. VPS servers

C 1. System support

In addition to free technical support directed towards education of users, the Provider also offers payed system support service. This type of support is meant for one-off tasks that are carried out for a Subscriber and could be carried out by the Subscriber himself but he or she is unable to do so because of lack of knowledge, free time or any other limitations.

C 1.1.

Subscriber understands that a technician of the Provider may not be able to estimate the time to complete a task immediately after receiving a request and if the task can even be completed.

C 1.2.

The subscriber may only use tokens to pay for system support. A token is an indivisible unit that can be purchased at the Provider and is used to pay for system support. A value of the token is translated in a number of minutes of a technician's work. Value of a token in minutes depends on the time of day that the work is done. If the Subscriber does not own any tokens, the Provider may suspend system support until the Subscriber obtains at least one token. Token is valid for one year from the day of purchase. The provider may offer monthly bundles of tokens that must be purchased before the request for system support and are valid for one (1) year from date of purchase.

C 1.3.

The subscriber may request different types of system support including (but not limited to) answering of difficult technical questions, debugging of Subscriber's applications or installation of different libraries and applications.

C 1.4.

The Provider shall assign a competent technician for one hour to resolve Subscriber's issue. If the Provider concludes that no technician has sufficient knowledge or experience, the Provider may reject the request.

C 1.5.

In the assigned time, the Provider shall conclude the resolution of the request in one of different ways:

- the requested task is completed
- the estimate and an offer for a complete resolution is prepared
- the Provider explains why a certain request can't be resolved and suggests an alternative

C 1.6.

The Provider shall process all Class 1 issues with priority and do everything in his power to continue work on the issue even after the assigned one hour slot. In this case the Provider will start working on the issue even if the Subscriber has no purchased tokens.

C 1.7.

Issue resolution is always followed with a written report sent to the Subscriber via e-mail. The Provider shall prepare the report at most two work days after the resolution.

C 1.8.

The Provider will subtract tokens from the Subscriber's account after issue resolution. If resolution time is longer than available number of tokens, the Provider shall issue an invoice to the Subscriber and the Subscriber agrees to pay for extra tokens.

C 1.9.

The Provider may add additional services to the price list if similar issues repeatedly arise. In this case, the Provider will invoice the Subscriber for the amount on the currently valid pricelist and will not subtract tokens from the Subscriber's account.

C 1.10.

The provider is free to refuse system support to any Subscriber. The Provider is not obligated to offer an explanation for his choice.

C 1.11.

The Subscriber may issue a request for system support by special telephone number that is assigned to him by the Provider or through a general support email. Outside normal working hours, a request can only be made via a special telephone number assigned by the Provider. The Subscriber is solely responsible that people with access to the telephone number are familiar with Terms and are aware that any call to the telephone number is treated as placing an order and agreeing to pay for this service. The Provider is not obligated to explicitly warn the caller of this fact each time the Subscriber requests system support

C 2. Response time for issues

C 2.1.

While requesting system support, the Subscriber may also request a task that should fix the error.

C 2.2.

An error is an issue that prevents the Subscriber from using the Provider's services according to service specifications. Errors are classified according to the impact on users of services. Error classification is determined by the Provider

- Class 1 errors: the Subscriber is unable to access the server or any service that is critical to the Subscriber and the Subscriber is unable to find a temporary workaround.
- Class 2 errors: an important functionality of the Subscriber's service is not working or has limited functionality.
- Class 3 errors: loss of non-critical functionality. The system does not work as intended but without greater implications to the customer.
- Class 4 errors: a general question or a request for smaller modifications (e.g. errors in documentation).

C 2.3.

In accordance with error classification, the Provider guarantees the following response times:

- 4 hours for class 1 errors,
- “Next work day” for class 2 errors and
- 3 work days for all other classes

C 2.4.

System support requests are resolved during normal working hours. By specific request by the Subscriber, request resolution can be done out of normal working hours. Value of tokens is changed if technicians resolve issues out of normal working hours:

- 1 token equals 15 minutes of work (from 8:00 to 16:00)
- 1 token equals 10 minutes of work (from 16:00 to 22:00)
- 1 token equals 7 minutes 30 seconds of work (22:00 to 8:00 and during non-working says)

The Subscriber can also request faster response times:

- Technician starts working next working days: 3 tokens,
- Technician starts working immediately on the issue: 5 tokens.

When a Subscriber purchases an unmanaged VPS hosting, the Provider can choose to help the Subscriber to install the system and perform some basic setup tasks. This service is a benefit and is not part of service that the Subscriber purchased. The Subscriber agrees that he alone is responsible for regular security patching and upgrading of applications and system within a virtual private server. The Provider offers technical support and consulting according to current Terms and Conditions and according to current pricelist.

The Subscriber alone is responsible for backing up the data within VPS. The Subscriber is responsible for setup of services within the VPS so they are automatically started in case of VPS restart.

The Subscriber agrees that the Provider may disable access to the VPS if the Subscriber exceeds the limits on system resources defined in General Terms and Conditions for his subscription.

The Subscriber may not execute applications and other programmes that remain resident in the RAM of the server without explicit permission from the Provider.

The Subscriber agrees that custom and managed VPS servers are limited by the total number of files and directories. This limit is 1,000,000 files and directories (inodes) and is required for optimal system performance.

The Subscriber agrees that any increase in Microsoft software prices will be charged to the Subscriber. Microsoft usually makes pricing adjustments once per year which can affect VPS that are prepaid for a period longer than one year.

License key provided by the Provider may only be used within a virtual environment of the VPS. The Subscriber may not store, publish or use the license key in any other form or way.

Subscriber understands that the Provider is a SPLA partner of Microsoft and is subject to a different licensing scheme. Subscriber must receive a written confirmation of license compatibility for each piece of software installed in VPS. If the Subscriber fails to get confirmation it is liable for any damages caused to the Provider because of licensing issues.

The Provider may demand root username and password for the VPS when a Subscriber orders and uses a Premium VPS package in order to provide better quality of service to the Subscriber.. The Subscriber is also required to notify the Provider of any changes to the username or password. If the Subscriber does not notify the Provider of the changes, the Provider may reset the username and password and send the new authentication data to the Subscriber.

The Subscriber agrees that he may not install or use the following applications

- IRC chat scripts,
- torrent tracker systems,
- streaming servers,
- gaming servers.

- operating system
- server services (web server, mail server, DNS server, FTP server, database server),
- control panel

The Provider shall not manage any other applications that are installed on the server by the Subscriber or a third party. The Subscriber alone is responsible for managing and updating these applications.

When a Subscriber installed application or an update to such application requires different base system (versions of libraries, other services...), the request is processed as an incident. Thus, a Subscriber is required to use purchased tokens.

The Subscriber agrees that versions of services, libraries and control panel are determined by the Provider.

The Provider may change the default version of services and libraries on the server as per request of the Subscriber. However, the Provider may refuse such a change to the system without explanation.

The Subscriber may request changes to basic configuration. The Provider shall make modifications free of charge within first 7 days of subscription purchase. After this date, the Subscriber may still request changes that will be charged according to the price list.

The Provider will check for availability of updates on a monthly basis. The Provider shall decide whether updates warrant an update to the system and will make the necessary changes. The Provider shall notify the Subscriber 3 days before making the changes. The Subscriber may reject the request for update once. If the subscriber refuses an upgrade twice, the subscription is automatically converted to a comparable unmanaged subscription. The Subscriber is not entitled to a refund of a price difference between managed and unmanaged subscription.

The Subscriber is not entitled to root access to the VPS.

The provider shall backup data from packages of shared and reseller hosting. The provider makes backups of data as an additional service for subscribers. This service is not part of any shared or reseller hosting offering as is retrieving of data from backups. The provider does not guarantee that data from backup will be available. The provider may change backup policy without any prior notice. Subscriber understands and agrees that he or she is solely responsible for making backup copies of all data.

K. WHOIS PRIVACY

K 1.

The purpose of the Whois privacy service is to protect the domain owners/holders from receiving unsolicited commercial proposals, stalking, spam, identity theft and other similar cases that could be caused by the publication of client's data in a public database.

K 2.

The client who ordered the domain registration from the provider and is at the same time the actual domain owner/holder and does not want his data to be visible in the domain register, can take advantage of the Whois privacy service by entering into a fiduciary relationship with the provider, so that the provider is entered as a formal domain owner/ holder in the domain register. The client remains the actual domain owner/ holder with all related rights and obligations.

K 3.

By ordering the Whois privacy service, a client who has ordered domain registration from the provider and at the same time is not the actual domain owner/holder, but orders it for the actual domain owner/holder, declares and guarantees that he has the authorization and consent of the actual domain owner/holder to order the Whois privacy service for him and to provide his data to the provider.

K 4.

The client is obliged to pay for the ordered Whois privacy service in advance for the entire period for which he ordered the domain registration from the provider.

K 5.

The client and actual domain owner/holder expressly undertake not to use Whois privacy services for any illegal or fraudulent purposes or in such a way as to cause damage to the provider or damage the reputation of the provider. In the event of such violations, the provider is entitled to immediately terminate the Whois privacy service and replace the data in the domain register with the actual domain owner/holder data at his disposal, whereby the payment already received for the Whois privacy service is not refunded.

K 6.

The client may, at any time during the period for which he has ordered domain registration from the provider, request the termination of the Whois privacy service and after the termination at any time request its reactivation.

K 7.

As part of the Whois privacy service, the provider may not use or manage the domain. Use and management of the domain is exclusively the right of the actual domain owner/holder.

K 8.

The actual domain owner/holder is obliged to do everything necessary to protect the provider from possible claims or lawsuits of third parties, which would be the result of using the Whois privacy service.

K 9.

In no case is the provider responsible for the actions of the client or the actual domain owner/holder connected to the use and management of the domain and for any other conduct of the client or the actual domain owner/holder connected to the use and management of the Whois privacy service. Therefore the client and the actual domain owner/holder are obliged to reimburse the provider in full for all direct and indirect damage that the provider, as the formal owner or the domain holder has suffered due to the inadmissible conduct of the client or the actual domain owner/holder, including administrative, court and out-of-court costs.

K 10.

Data of the client, who is at the same time the actual domain owner/holder and data of the client who orders the Whois privacy for another actual domain owner/holder must not be disclosed to third parties by the provider. The provider is also obliged to effectively protect this data and keep it confidential.

K 11.

Regardless of the previous article, the provider is obliged to disclose all information at his disposal when this is imposed on him by a binding court ruling or other order of the competent court or with an order of a public or tax authority entitled to request such disclosure.

K 12.

E-mail messages for the actual domain owner/holder which sent to the e-mail address of the provider will be redirected to the e-mail address of the actual domain owner/holder.

K 13.

The provider does not bear any responsibility in the event that Whois privacy services could not be performed due to the requirements of the domain register or for reasons on the domain register's side. In the event that Whois privacy cannot be used due to a technical or other error on the part of the provider, the provider's liability is limited to the amount paid by the client or the amount the client should have paid to the provider for the Whois privacy service in the last year before the damage event occurred.

K 14.

The provider can terminate the Whois privacy service at any time with a 30-day notice period, whereby after the expiration of the notice period he is obliged to return the proportional share of the received payment for the Whois privacy service, and enter the actual domain owner/holder data at his disposal in the domain register.

K 15.

The Whois privacy service can be used only during the period of domain registration with the provider, so the provider terminates the Whois privacy service at the moment when the actual domain owner/holder or client who is not at the same time the actual domain owner/holder, sends a request to obtain a domain password (EPP code) to transfer the domain to another registrar. The service can be reactivated (at the express request of the client) only after the expiration of the EPP code.

K 16.

In the event that before the expiration of the period for which the domain is registered, only the registration of the domain is renewed, but not the Whois privacy service, the provider terminates the service from the day of the expiration of the Whois privacy service.

K 17.

In the event that the registered domain is not renewed and expires, the provider does not terminate the Whois privacy protection and the service remains active until the domain is deleted.

K 18.

If the domain registration is renewed only after the expiration of the period for which the domain was registered and at the same time the renewal of the Whois privacy service is not ordered, the provider terminates the Whois privacy service from the day the domain is renewed.

K 19.

By ordering the Whois privacy service the actual domain owner/holder and the client who orders the Whois privacy service for the actual domain owner/holder declare and confirm that they are aware of and accept all risks in possible domain disputes, where it will be necessary to prove the existence of a fiduciary relationship established under the Whois privacy service, and therefore accept all negative consequences and all damages in case the outcome of a domain dispute would be different than it would have been if Whois privacy had not been used.
